The Legislative and PAC Committees work year-round but gains momentum during the legislative session. They are OCAPA's first defense against anti-industry policy decisions and OCAPA's leading think-tank when formulating new legislation.

When OCAPA decides to propose legislation for the government's consideration, it is drafted first in the Legislative Committee. Then it goes to the Board for approval, then submitted to the appropriate state representative for feedback. Due to this detailed planning process, the legislation that OCAPA brings to the capitol usually turns into law.
